

Environmental guidelines

Münch+Münch is a world-leading Shop Design, Shop Value Engineering, Shop Production and Shop Service company. We supply our customers worldwide with high-quality fittings. Münch+Münch consumes energy as well as raw materials in its work. To minimise the environmental impact as much as possible, Münch+Münch commits itself to the following environmental guidelines.

Protection

Protecting the environment is an embodiment of corporate responsibility. It is the prerequisite for a company to be accepted and recognized by society in the long term.

Sustainable Business

Sustainable business means, in particular regarding our future generations, using energy and raw materials as sparingly and efficiently as possible in addition to taking advantage of renewable resources. We avoid or minimise the environmental impact of waste, emissions and noise whenever we can. To improve our environmental performance sustainably, we use the best technology available to us when economically and socially justifiable. Regarding important financial decisions, the impact of these decisions on the environment is assessed as part of our strategic environmental management. A continuous, qualitative evaluation of the environmental performance is carried out.

Draft Legislation

Legal environmental regulations and rules are adhered to and consistently pursued.

Continuous improvement

We comply with environmental regulations. However, we always strive to do more. We endeavour to use the best available technology, processes and structures within the framework of our economic possibilities to continue to make and continuously improve our contribution to the protection and preservation of the environment.

Customers – Suppliers – Public

We maintain a constructive dialogue with our customers, suppliers, neighbours, authorities and the interested public with regard to environmental issues.

Colleagues

The conservation of the environment is not only a responsibility of the management. For it to be a success, every one of us has to participate so that we as a company move forward each and every day. We promote the environmental awareness of our employees by constantly providing them with relevant information. We focus on creativity within the company and support innovative projects in a targeted manner.

The goal is to establish an environmental management system for continuous improvement and compliance with the Münch+Münch environmental guidelines.
